EQUIPMENT LEASING & FINANCE

Capital Equipment Lease

Capital to Keep Things Running Smoothly

A capital equipment lease is a contract in which the lender (lessor) gives another party (the lessee) the exclusive right to use and possess its property or equipment (leased equipment) for a specified period. No large upfront costs are required, preserving capital.

At the end of the lease, the lessee has three options:

- Return the equipment
- Renew the lease
- Purchase the equipment

Types of Leases

Fair Market Value (FMV) Leases	$1 Buyout Leases
Operating lease where the lessor retains ownership of the equipment and assumes residual value risk while the lessee makes regular lease payments. This offers tax advantages as FMV leases may qualify as operating expenses, allowing monthly payments to be deducted from taxable income.	Ownership of the asset with exclusive right to use, financing up to 100% of the asset and soft costs, with a purchase option of the asset at the end of the lease term for $1.

Why Equipment Leasing?

- Preserve capital with little to no upfront cost
- Access equipment without large cash outlay
- Flexible end of term options
- Potential tax advantages depending on lease structure
- 100% financing options including soft costs available
