What Is Freight Factoring?

Freight factoring, also known as trucking factoring or transportation factoring, is a financial service where trucking companies sell unpaid freight invoices to a factoring company in exchange for an immediate cash advance. Once the invoice is factored, the factoring company collects payment directly from the customer when the invoice is due. After collection, any remaining reserve balance is released to the trucking company, minus a small fee.

Freight factoring is a specialized form of invoice factoring designed specifically for the transportation industry, helping trucking companies bridge cash flow gaps.

Freight Factoring is not a loan. No debt is created — the capital provided is based on the credit of your customers, not your balance sheet.
