Revenue Based Financing (RBF)

Accelerate Your Business

Revenue-based financing, also known as revenue sharing, is an alternative debt financing structure. As opposed to term loans with fixed monthly interest payments, monthly payments are based on a percentage of future monthly revenues over a specified period.

Unlike traditional debt financing, which involves fixed interest payments and repayments schedules, revenue—based financing allows companies to repay investors based on their actual revenue performance.

This type of financing structure is perfect for SaaS companies who have a subscription-based revenue models. Qualified businesses are those with consistent high monthly recurring revenue (MRR) and high gross margins. No collateral as this type funding typically relies on cash flow rather than physical assets.

Revenue Based Financing vs. Bank Loans or Venture Capital

- ✓ No personal guarantees
- ✓ Higher principal amounts
- ✓ No equity dilution
